BACKGROUND

This Health Promotion Scholarship Program aims to provide work experience and training opportunities to new health promotion graduates and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people seeking a career in health promotion. The Australian Health Promotion Association Ltd (AHPA®) WA Branch Health Promotion Scholarship Program is Western Australia's flagship health promotion scholarship, a prestigious program that builds on 29 years of history and success to launch the careers of the next generation of health promotion leaders. The strength of this program is its return on investment for Healthway, program longevity, and its recognition amongst public health professionals both within Western Australia and beyond. The program has been fundamental in both the development of graduate careers and the capacity of the WA health promotion workforce; while also enhancing the capacity of host agencies to deliver health promotion projects.

Since 1993 the Scholarship Program has had many positive outcomes. For scholarship recipients themselves, evaluation has shown that they have continued employment with their host agency after completing their scholarship or have utilised skills learnt in the Scholarship Program to successfully gain other employment. The list of previous recipients of the Scholarship Program is a roll-call of health promotion and public health leaders in both Western Australia and beyond – who have taken this early-career opportunity and built careers in government, not-for-profit and academia.

The Australian Health Promotion Association (AHPA®) WA Branch is offering up to five health promotion scholarships during 2023:

- Two graduate scholarships;
- One Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander scholarship;
- One regional scholarship (graduate and/or Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander); and
- One of any category.

Each scholarship offered is for a six-month full-time health promotion work placement (part-time options can be negotiated). Scholarships are to commence before March 2023 and scholarship recipients are expected to work exclusively at the host agency for the duration of the scholarship.

To apply for a scholarship, applicants must meet at least ONE of the following requirements:

- Undergraduate or postgraduate student in the final year of a health promotion, health science, preventative health or public health degree at a Western Australian university;
- Completed a tertiary qualification in health promotion, health science, preventative health or public health (e.g. undergraduate or postgraduate degree) at a Western Australian university within the past 12 months; OR
- Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander person wishing to progress into a career in health promotion who either has work or volunteer experience and/or TAFE or University qualifications in Aboriginal health, nursing, youth work, teaching or other related fields.

The successful applicant's salary (plus partial on-costs) is funded by the scholarship with access to additional professional development funding and a regional allowance if relocating to a regional area to complete the scholarship.

Successful scholarship recipients will be employed by a host agency to work on a specific project under the supervision of an appropriately experienced health promotion professional. Health promotion, appropriate community or Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health, non-government or government agencies are able to host a scholarship recipient. The scholarship recipient will undertake tasks of mutual benefit to the agency and to their professional career. Host agencies need to provide evidence of cultural security and support.

The project can form part of an existing program within the agency or may be a new initiative. It is essential that the project already has funding and appropriate resources to complete the project before the application is submitted as the scholarship only covers the applicant's salary and a portion of agency on-costs. The applicant should not be expected to source further funding in order to complete the project.

GETTING STARTED

Please begin by familiarising yourself with the eligibility criteria, recipient and agency responsibilities, and processes outlined in this handbook. Scholarship applications may be initiated via a number of methods (applicant initiated or agency initiated).

The applicant may initiate the process by:

- approaching an agency and negotiating a specific work plan; or
- contacting the AHPA (WA Branch) Scholarships Coordinator to access a list of potential agencies that may have expressed an interest in hosting a scholarship recipient.

An agency may initiate the process by:

- approaching a potential applicant directly and negotiating a specific work plan; or
- contacting the AHPA (WA Branch) Scholarships Coordinator with a specific project in mind. Such projects will be discussed with potentially suitable applicants who will in turn initiate contact with the relevant agency.

Applicants are encouraged to give special consideration to health promotion projects based in rural or remote areas. Applying for a scholarship in a regional location will allow the applicant to be eligible for at least one of three of the scholarship categories.

Applicants are strongly encouraged to submit scholarship projects that aim to improve health by addressing one or more of Healthway's priority areas and/or priority populations for health promotion through increasing individual knowledge and skills, influencing behaviour change or improving community and organisational policies and environments. Alignment with a Healthway priority area and/or population will receive heavier weighting in the recruitment process. See Healthway's Strategic Plan Active Healthy People: 2018-2023 for more information:

Need help with your application?

The AHPA (WA Branch) Scholarships Coordinator can assist by:

- confirming that your application and project meet the eligibility criteria;
- matching an applicant with a host agency;
- matching a host agency with a scholarship applicant.

All applicants and agencies are advised to contact the Scholarships Coordinator on scholarshipswa@healthpromotion.org.au to discuss the suitability of their project idea and eligibility criteria before submitting an application. Please note that assistance with matching applicants and agencies, and advice on project suitability should be sought at least two weeks before the application due date.

Ethics: Applicants and agencies are encouraged where possible and/or relevant to seek ethics approval for scholarship projects, preferably before the scholarship commences. This will help to ensure the project can be disseminated to a wider audience, such as in academic publications and conferences. Example of an ethics application process and information about why ethics is required for research: <https://research.curtin.edu.au/standards/human/>

SUCCESSFUL RECIPIENT + AGENCY RESPONSIBILITIES

Successful scholarship recipients with support from host agencies are responsible for the following during the course of the scholarship:

Professional Development Plan: An additional $1,000 (+GST) is available to successful applicants via the development of a Professional Development (PD) Plan. The PD Plan will outline professional development activities that the recipient intends to undertake during their placement and the specific skills that the recipient will gain from attending. To apply for this additional funding, a PD plan needs to be completed within two weeks of commencement of the scholarship for approval by AHPA and Healthway.

Planning Document: This will outline a timeline and breakdown of activities to be undertaken during the scholarship and is to be completed within two weeks of commencement of the scholarship.

Communities of Practice: To develop the engagement and sustainability of the AHPA WA Branch, applicants and their supervisors are expected to commit to participating in the AHPA WA Branch Communities of Practice. These communities of practice will encourage ongoing engagement of recipients with the AHPA (WA Branch) committee to engage in sessions that support learning around IUHPE competencies, foster collegiality and translate knowledge beyond their own agencies and in to the AHPA community. These sessions will invite recipients and their supervisors, and key WA Branch committee members and a nominee from Healthway to participate in review, joint problem solving and examine opportunities to further develop their project beyond the life of the Scholarship project.

Health Promotion Competencies: Scholarship recipients will be required to rate their confidence against each of the International Union of Health Promotion and Education's (IUHPE) Core Competencies and Professional Standards for Health Promotion on commencement and completion of the scholarship to track increase in skills, confidence and knowledge for evaluation purposes.

Mid-Term Progress Report: Standardised form to be completed by the recipient no later than three months after commencement of scholarship (or at the halfway point if completing scholarship part-time).

Final Report and Evaluation: Report and evaluation, to be completed by the recipient and supervisor within one month of the completion of the scholarship.

AHPA (WA Branch) Committee Engagement: Recipients are invited to attend both the 2023 and 2024 AHPA (WA Branch) AGM meetings. Provide an article to be published in the AHPA (WA Branch) member communications at the beginning and end of scholarship. Attend (in person or by videoconference) an AHPA (WA Branch) committee meeting to present your scholarship project. Involvement as a committee member or ex-officio is encouraged both during and after your scholarship placement.

Publicity/media coverage: Scholarship recipients and their host agency should generate publicity for the scholarship project, promoting both the AHPA (WA Branch) and Healthway wherever possible. Recipients are asked to seek feedback from the Scholarships Coordinator prior to publication of project activities.

Presentations: Opportunities will be available to make presentations on scholarship projects to raise the profile of the Scholarship Program and will be completed in consultation with the Scholarships

Coordinator. This may include presentations at the annual Student Careers Night and/or the AHPA (WA Branch) General Meeting of Members.

Meetings: Scholarship recipients are also expected to be available for regular meetings with the Scholarships Coordinator if required to monitor the progress of their placement, and with other recipients to network and share experiences. These can take place via telephone/videoconference for those undertaking scholarships in rural or remote areas.

Ethics: Scholarship recipients and host agencies are encouraged where possible and/or relevant to seek ethics approval for scholarship projects. This will help to ensure the project can be disseminated to a wider audience, such as in academic publications and conferences.

Post-Scholarship Evaluation: Evaluation of the Scholarship Program involves follow up with scholarship recipients up to 12 months following the completion of their scholarship. Recipients and host agencies will be contacted to complete an evaluation at three, six and twelve months post-scholarship completion.
